Maconomy and XCM Solutions enter into strategic partnership

Maconomy, a global provider of ERP business solutions for Professional Services organizations, has entered into a strategic partnership with XCM Solutions, a developer of web-based workflow automation solutions. Together, Maconomy and XCM Solutions will collaborate to increase the efficiency, productivity and profitability of accounting and other professional service firms.

"Maconomy will benefit by leveraging XCM's complementary workflow technologies in our ERP strategy. XCM's depth of knowledge in the accounting industry will help us better serve our clients. We look forward to partnering with XCM and are confident that it will be a productive relationship for both organizations," says Elizabeth Marley, Account Manager, Maconomy US.

Maconomy will sponsor XCM Solutions' 2010 User Conference, to be held June 17-June 18 in Boston, MA. The conference expects to attract more than 100 technology leaders from tax and accounting firms, including the top 30 firms.

"Maconomy is quickly becoming a global leader in delivering comprehensive practice management solutions for service professionals. We share their goal of empowering firms to work more efficiently and productively. By working collaboratively, we can each benefit from the other's strengths to help firms achieve that vision," says Glen Keenan, President, XCM Solutions, Inc.

This spring, Maconomy and XCM Solutions will attend the Information Technology Alliance's Spring Meeting in Atlanta, as well as the AICPA 2010 Tech+ and Practitioner's Conference in Las Vegas.

About XCM Solutions, LLC (www.xcmsolutions.com)

Founded by CPAs, XCM Solutions, LLC provides accounting firms with web-based workflow management solutions that increase efficiency, productivity and profitability. The company's management team has drawn on its extensive experience in public accounting and clear understanding of the paper-driven workflow issues facing the profession to develop technology that addresses those challenges.

XCM's customer-guided development process has helped the company continuously raise the bar for business process automation solutions for the accounting profession. The award-winning XCM™ workflow management software has become a key piece of the technology equation for firms re-engineering paper-based processes as they move toward a paperless environment.
